Welcome, dear friends.

Modernist's first six and a half years comprised of over 15 menus - we'd like to think of those as our first collection or edition of menus.

With time, things change - we grow and we evolve, not saying we forget the past. Nostalgia offers us a reminder of past-times and the memories, experiences and imprints of emotion that what we carry forward with us.

Fittingly, introducing the first of our second edition menu series: this menu is a reflection on memory; a representation of flavors, scents, and moments that shaped our lives.

Each cocktail is a story told through the lens of one of our bartenders, inspired by childhood comforts, family traditions, or simple joys of the past.

Thank you for taking this journey with us.

ALWAYS SUNNY IN THE PARKS — 14.5

chilean pisco, alma finca orange liqueur, passion fruit, peach, orange,
green tea, soda water

-jacob stahl

we were kids beneath the sun

no worries, only games and fun

one shared can

old laughs

back when joy was all we'd known

Nobody could unapologetically own the desires of my nine-year-old heart the way Sharpay Evans did.

I was so anxious to step into my first sleepover, but the nerves melted as we all crowded around the TV to watch the High School Musical 2 premiere.

All 15 of us girls sang along in chorus, pausing the screen to fawn over a dreamy Troy Bolton, but I was the most mesmerized by this blonde, bombshell badass who demanded nothing but the best.

THE FABULOUS — 16

blueberry-infused tanqueray no. ten gin,
pasubio amaro, bergamot, blueberry shrub,
lavender earl grey tea, citrus, orange bitters

**local blueberries from Rancho Notso Grande Farm - Hanford, CA*

- kennedy brotemarkle

VINAI NO. 1 — 15

mijenta tequila blanco, blanc vermouth,
sour lime cordial, tonic water, guava,
curry leaf, co2

- aline tongkhuya

“Don’t eat too many or else you’ll get cavities,” my dad said, as I proceeded to peel the green metallic wrapper off
a fresh piece of guava candy.

“That’s your last one, Aline.
Koj yuav tsum noj ua ntej –
you have to eat first,”
my stepmom scolds, glaring at me
from across the table.

I stayed quiet,
slowly sinking into my chair.
I rolled the candy
into the corner of my mouth,
hoping to make it last longer.

When she wasn’t looking,
I swiped a few more candies off the table
and put them in my pocket.

BESO TROPICAL — 14.5

**non-alcoholic*

pathfinder hemp & root amaro, zero-proof pineapple liqueur, guava, lime, herbal tea blend (valerian, rooibos, roasted coconut, chamomile, apple)

- aline tongkhuya

island roots run deep from barrio streets to stars
now the whole world sings,

"the only thing more powerful than hate is love."

Sun-soaked was how I spent every summer as a young girl.

I'd watch my weekends float by,
laid out by the poolside for hours on end,
thinking of my mother in her childhood
doing the same as me.

ENDLESS DAYS IN MY CHAISE — 14

**non-alcoholic*

ritual zero-proof gin, floreale aperitif,
zero-proof elderflower liqueur,
blueberry shrub

- kennedy brotemarkle

FINCA AMANECER — 14

junipero smoked rosemary gin, sloe gin, honey liqueur, coconut liqueur, thyme-honey, coconut water, blue coconut foam

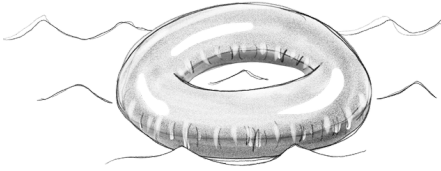

- bryan trejo

In the heat of the summer,
you feel invincible.

You jump into the water for the first time, excited to cool
your body from the blazing heat.

Then suddenly, a sharp sting
in the neck, carrying a strange sweetness of honey.

Your body goes into shock
as salty water fills your mouth while you struggle to find the surface.

Just when it feels like the water around you will swallow you whole,
you feel hands pulling
you from the depths.

Relieved, terrified, and left with a memory you'll never forget, the only comfort that remains is the chill of a cold
popsicle against the summer heat.

In the heat of the summer,
you felt humbled.

PEN PAL — 15

iichiko shinwa shochu, st. george valley gin,
green tea umeshu, olive, bergamot, mint,
jasmine tea soda

- ace fabionar

Island letters drift

Green tea steam and sea salt plum –

Your stories still bloom

BESIDES LOVE — 15

tequila blanco, almave blanco,
sour lime cordial, aloe,
alpine herbal liqueur

- neil swift

My skin feels electric and I can't look away.
We sit in my childhood treehouse.
The spring air is cold in my lungs and my heart is pounding out of my 10 year old chest.
Her hair, RED as fire.
Her smile ignited my soul.
For the first time, I sit BESIDES LOVE!

On our walks, everything felt weightless.
Not a care in the world,
One foot in front of the other.
The misted air so thick you could embrace it.

Branches crackling overhead,
we look up at the tree towers above, ever so still.
Nectar from the honeysuckle clung to my lips.
Conversations with dad, asking him every question
under the humid sun -

Ruminating on everything we lost.
Reminiscing on who we had keeping us glued together.
Watching the fabric of our lives unwind
before our eyes - on the other side of the green,
we're home once more.

Family greets us in the front lawn with smiles so wide and laughter so loud you could drown in it.

We're home once more.

ritual zero proof gin, ritual zero proof aperitif, sip into something soft... slightly bitter but full of life delicate, don't get lost... in all the joy of something light

The train horn blares!
Inches away from the infinite.
Childhood behind me. Adulthood ahead.

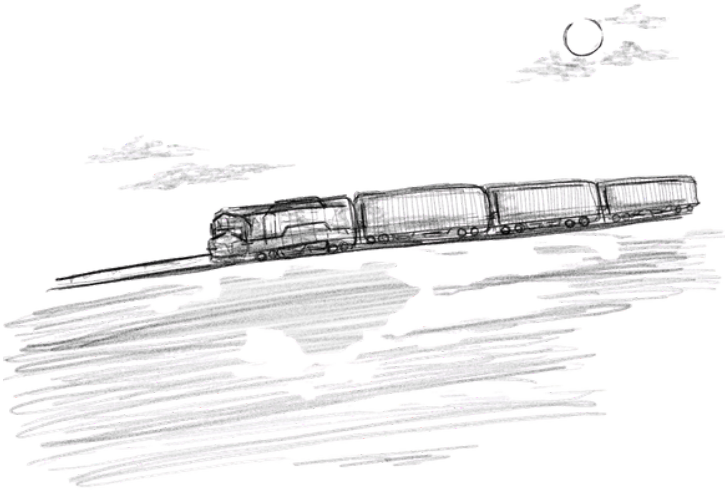

Just outside of town, nestled along the railroad tracks,
surrounded by corn fields and friends.

Half a dozen cars packed to the brim on a secret dirt road.
Laughter fills the air and music roars from the stereo.

The moon is high. The air is dry.

Our voices sing together before we move apart.

Here we are in our HIDDEN HAVEN.

HIDDEN HAVEN NO. 2 — 16

bulleit bourbon, limoncello, floreale aperitif,
ginger, calendula tincture

- neil swift

APAPACHO — 14.5

mexican amaro, alma finca orange liqueur, planteray 3 starswhite rum, pepita orgeat, tomato, lime

-aline tongkhuya

In Yucatán, a word kept finding me.
It drifted through conversations
Hung in the warm air
Returned again
And again
Like a song I couldn't place...
Apapacho.

I asked Mica what it meant.
He paused. Smiled.
Said there wasn't really an English translation,
Only that it was something like...
A hug for the soul.

Not the kind given with arms, but with presence.
The kind of love that settles deeper.

Some hugs are felt long after they end.
Some places stay with you long after you leave.
Apapacho is both.

For the homie, Mica.

JOG IN THE FOG — 15.5

mint-infused nikka japanese gin,
italian botanical spirit, saffron, braulio,
woodlands amaro, angostura bitters

- denver mctighe

"Being born in Monterey, I'm no stranger to a foggy morning like we have here in Fresno. One night stirred up a memory I hadn't touched in years. I ran cross country in high school. It was amazing, and a lesson learned is you only compete against yourself."

"On this particular meet, deep in the cypress groves of Pacific Grove, you couldn't see 3 feet in front of yourself. The moment was surreal. I wanted to bring you along with me to smell and taste the earthy complexity. Imagine yourself catching wafts of moss, wet earth in the air after being kicked up from someone's stride."

"I was born and raised in Fresno, where life moved with the seasons and the scent of the valley carried traces of earth, citrus, and sun-baked dust.

Mornings often began like a preheated oven; hazy streaks of sky hung over rows of strawberry fields off Church Avenue, while the silvery leaves of olive trees lined the streets, littering the sidewalks with smudges of black fruit in the afternoon heat.

Orange orchards perfumed the roads in spring, and by late summer, the dry air filled with the sharp, vegetal spice of chili peppers and fertilizer left to ripen beneath the Central Valley sun.

Beyond the crops, Producers Dairy stands tall over the urban sprawl towards Modernist. My mind slips into the ghosts of what this place must've been once-upon-a-time before the bartender cuts through the daydream and drops a cold Negroni right in front of me like a prescription."

HOME GROWN — 14

milk-washed nikka japanese vodka*,
green chile, strawberry, olive, habañoero

**contains traces of milk + whey*

- ace fabionar

EL ARTE — 16

flor de caña 12 year rum,
alma finca orange liqueur, sherry blend,
vanilla, orange bitters, smoked chili salt

- denver mctighe

*My grandfather, Art, was the most incredible human.
I strive for his quiet calm, his wisdom, and his laughter.*

At night he would relax after long days of work, lay in his recliner and pack a pipe of Captain Black Pipe tobacco.

*He'd slowly draw the smoke in and out of his lungs.
I would get lost in the shapes of the smoke dancing through the streams of light. The smell would engulf a room with sweet vanilla and orange zest.*

This cocktail was made to share with my family to transport us one last time to a Christmas or birthday or whatever memory we held onto and wanted to relive.
